

Rossi d'Angera Vermouth Rosso

Rossi d'Angera Vermouth Rosso is made from selected wines and a hydroalcoholic infusion of over 31 botanicals.

Classic vermouth obtained from the union of Cortese and Trebbiano white wines with hydroalcoholic infusions. In addition to bitter-toned herbs and roots such as cinchona, rhubarb and gentian, the infusion also contains some herbs typical of the lake and pre-Alpine area.

Tasting Notes

Color: A deep amber color tending towards orange.

Bouquet: Intense, aromatic gentian, cinchona, and rhubarb with persistent hints of medicinal herbs, absinthes, yarrow, and citrus.

Taste: Round, ample, vigorous with spicy, vinous notes and a long finish.

Serving suggestion: Try it neat, on the rocks or ask for the dedicated cocktail list.

Alcohol: 16%

Rossi d'Angera is an historic distillery founded in 1847. This family business is in Angera, on the shores of Lake Maggiore, where the region Lombardia abuts Piemonte, just south of the Swiss Alps. During their 175 years of history, five generations, beginning with founder Bernardo Rossi, have carried on this family tradition with passion and desire to spread the Italian culture.

Through two world wars and modern innovations, the business has been a family endeavor. From the original steam distilleries to the modern-day international marketing and distribution, they have been constant through it all. Whenever you are mixing cocktails and creating Italian-style, quality-time with family, friends or customers – Rossi d'Angera will help you deliver authentic Italian flavors.
