

VINITY
WINE COMPANY

Cave Mont Blanc Blanc du Blanc

Overview

- Blanc du Blanc from 100% Prié Blanc — a grape that grows almost nowhere but here, on ungrafted vines between 900 and 1,200 meters in the shadow of Mont Blanc. There's a reason this altitude makes such good sparkling wine: the fruit ripens slowly and holds the acidity that lower vineyards lose by August, which is exactly what a base wine wants. The Blanc du Blanc from this tiny cooperative ferments first in steel, then spends time in barrique before the second fermentation — a little roundness to carry all that mountain tension — and then two full years on the lees in bottle. Straw-gold with green glints and a fine, insistent bead. Floral and fruited on the nose, balanced and long on the palate, and only 11.5% alcohol.

Appellation: Vallée d'Aoste DOC

Style: White, dry

Varietal: 100% Prié Blanc.

Winemaking and Vineyard Notes

Rootstock: Ungrafted (piede franco / franc de pied).

Vineyard Altitude: 900–1,200 m (2,950–3,950 ft).

Vinification: First fermentation in stainless steel; passage in barrique prior to the prise de mousse; traditional second fermentation in bottle.

Aging: 24 months on the lees.

Tasting Notes

Color: Straw yellow with greenish reflections. Fine and persistent bubbles.

Bouquet: Fine, intense, floral and fruity.

Palate: Good persistence with excellent balance.

Alcohol: 11.5%.

Serving Temperature: Chilled 6–8° C (43–46° F).

Food Pairing

Excellent as an aperitivo; Lardo DOP; vegetable flan with fonduta.

At the foot of Mont Blanc, in the Valle d'Aosta communes of Morgex and La Salle, Cave Mont Blanc farms some of the highest vineyards in Europe. The grape is Prié Blanc, native here and grown almost nowhere else — and, because phylloxera cannot survive at this altitude, the vines grow ungrafted on their own roots. Trained on low pergolas across steep terraces, every parcel is worked by hand. This grower cooperative bottles still, traditional-method sparkling, and late-harvest wines: taut, alpine, low in alcohol, and unmistakably shaped by the mountain.