

VINITY
WINE COMPANY

Viticoltori De Conciliis Aglianicone "Misterioso"

Overview

- Aglianicone is one of southern Italy's rarest grapes and a close cousin of the mighty Aglianico. The De Conciliis family grows it organically on the hills of Cilento National Park and named this wine after a Thelonious Monk classic. Wild blackberry, blueberry, and raspberry meet fresh minerality and silky tannins.

Appellation: Paestum Rosso IGP

Type: Red, dry

Varietal: 100% Aglianicone

Winemaking and Vineyard Notes

Production area: Agropoli, Prignano.

Vineyards: Destre, 250m (820ft) above sea level

Soil: Cilento flysch (sandstone, soft marls, and sandy shale) and calcareous clay.

Training method: Bilateral guyot (5,500 vines per hectare)

Yield: 60 quintals per hectare

Harvest: Last ten days of September, by hand.

Vinification: In temperature-controlled stainless steel tank, with maceration of about 5 days.

Aging: 6 months in stainless steel; 12 months in large amphora, followed by 6 months in bottle prior to release.

Tasting Notes

Color: Deep ruby red.

Bouquet: The nose shows blackberry, blueberry, and raspberry with a touch of forest floor.

Palate: Fresh and mineral, with delicate tannins and lively fruit.

Alcohol: 13.5%

Serving Temperature: 16-18° C (60°-64° F)

Pairing: Grilled sausages and lamb, wood-fired pizza, pasta with meat ragù, and aged pecorino.

Food Pairing

Grilled sausages and lamb, wood-fired pizza, pasta with meat ragù, and aged pecorino.

Viticoltori De Conciliis is a family-run winery founded in 1996 in Prignano Cilento, on Campania's wild southern coast. Perched on hills overlooking the Mediterranean, between the Greek temples of Paestum and the Cilento National Park, the estate champions native grapes — Aglianico, Fiano, and rare Aglianicone — grown on organic-certified, non-volcanic soils of marl and sandstone. Solar-powered since 2007 and guided by minimal intervention, the winery ferments with indigenous yeasts and adds little sulfur. Jazz infuses everything: flagship Naima honors John Coltrane, sparkling Selim salutes Miles Davis. These are soulful, saline wines of place.