I Cacciagalli
Aglianico Roccamonfina "Phos"

BIOLOGICO

Overview

- Our vines grow on the flanks of Roccamonfina in Teano, northern Campania, rooted in sandy volcanic soil and farmed biodynamically by Diana Iannaccone and Mario Basco. We pick by hand in early October, then let the grapes do the rest: native yeasts, months on the skins and in the lees, all inside terracotta amphorae. No oak, no fining, no filtering. Just Aglianico, unmasked.

I Cacciagalli is a small biodynamic estate in Teano, in northern Campania's Alto Casertano, set on the slopes of the extinct Roccamonfina volcano. The land has belonged to Diana Iannaccone's family for generations; today she, an agronomist, and her husband Mario Basco farm about nine hectares of native grapes only: Aglianico, Piedirosso, Pallagrello Nero, Falanghina and Fiano. Their volcanic soils are rich in minerals. In the cellar, some sixty terracotta amphorae do most of the work, hosting spontaneous fermentations and long skin macerations. Nothing is fined or filtered, so every wine tastes of this place.
